R. PETER MORAN'S etched work is elaborate in treatment, yet always shows valuable artistic direction. Every line is beautifully placed and full of meaning. His technical qualities have won the very highest praise in Paris where, if anywhere, good etching is understood. They are such handsome pictures, too, that those who know and care the least for etchings are charmed by them. Come and see them.

A Circular That Gives Information for the Guidance of Publishers and Firms.

To facilitate bidding for the supply of common school text-books, the State Board of Education has issued a circular treating such points and questions as it thinks may, under the wording of the law, raise any doubt or apprehension in the minds of publishers. It sets forth, under an opinion of the Attorney-general, that each bidder, whether his proposal be for the full series of books, or for the text-books in one or more branches of study only, must file with his bid a bond in the penal sum of fifty thousand dollars ($50,000), with resident freehold surety, to the acceptance and satisfaction of the Governor of the Governor.

It is also stated that each contractor will be required to give a bond for the faithful performance of his contract in the following amounts respectively:

CLOSE OF THE DANCING SEASON.

A brilliant scene met the sight of the visitor to Tomlinson Hall last evening. it being the occasion of the eighth annual closof the dancing season of Prof. D. B. Brenneke and pupils. A cross the front of the stage was a row of plants and flowers, and in the center of the hall was a pyramid of tropical plants, screening Hart's orchestra, which furnished the music. The gallery and about four rows of chairs around the main floor, as well as the stage, were filled with lookers-on. From 7:30 till 9:30 o'clock the children occupied the floor, and the appearance was of a gala night, the delicate blues, pinks and greens of their costumes setting off the many darker shades, and their free and graceful dancing were much admired, especially in the fancy dances. The free and graceful dancing were much admired, especially in the fancy dances. The cachuca was given by Marie and Eloise Morton, dressed in Spanish style, and the sailor's hornpipe by Misses Sharlie Dering, Nellie Driggs, Mamie Reaume, Masters Clarence Coffin, Willie Morrison and Fred Dickson, in sailor costumes of white, with blue sashes. Both dances were so loudly applauded that they were repeated. After the children the ball for the grown people followed, and there were a great many who took part. Many representative society people were present, both among the visitors and on the dancing floor. Among the guests from out of town were Miss Belle Sergent and Mr. Adolph Sergent, Edinburg; Miss Florence Pearson, Mitchell; Miss Helen Brackebush and Miss Kate McLain, Chicago; Miss Etta Yeager, Danville, Ky.; Miss Laura Hiatt, Richmond; Mr. and Mrs. Henry Plough, Kansas City; Miss Addie Treat, New Haven, Conn., and Mr. J. ### OFFERED A WORTHLESS CHECK.

Goldsoll Failed to Get Goods He Ordered, and, on Being Arrested, Confessed His Crime.

Louis Goldsoll, seventeen years of age, was arrested last night on a charge of obtaining goods under false pretenses. Shortly before 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon, he entered the gentlemen's furnishing store of Paul H. Krauss, on East Washington street, and purchased a bill of goods amounting to $121.75, which he ordered sent to the Weddell House, where, he said, he was stopping. The salesman in the store, suspecting something was wrong, turned Goldsoll over to Mr. Krause, who took the order himself, and as payment he was offered a check on the Indianapolis National Bank for the amount of the bill, payble to the order of E. Phillips. Mr. Krauss, after Goldsoll's departure, made inquiries at the bank and found that no such a man as E. Philips had an account on its books. The assistance of patrolmen Stout and Clary was secured, and a search of the city was begun. At the Weddell House they were informed that a young man answering to the description given had registered, but had gone out. After further efforts Goldsoll was arrested in the billiard-room of the Grand Hotel. He at once confessed his crime, and was subsequently lodged in the station-house. The charge of forgery was placed against him, but inasmuch as he confessed that the name of Phillips was an imaginary one, it is doubtful whether or not he can be indicted upon it. But by his confession of attempting to obtain money under false pretenses he convicts himself of a crime for which he can receive no less than two or more than ten Mr. Krauss, after Goldsoll's departure, made receive no less than two or more than ten in the afternoon, and, before registering at any hotel, attempted the game at which he was caught. Goldsoll's story, as related to a Journal reporter shortly after his arrest, was contradictory. At first he asserted that he had come to Indianapolis intending to go on to Chicago, where he was to meet an uncle. With this uncle, he said, he intended to go to Butte M. T. an uncle. With this uncle, he said, he intended to go to Butte, M. T., where they expected to engage in the jewelry business. He ultimately sold a story that savored more of truth, while it was still evident that it had been manufactured for the occasion. "I really had no intention to meet my uncle in Chicago," he said, "although he thinks I have. The fact is, I have an insurance claim coming to me from the California Union, at Cleveland, for $237. Yesterday at Cincinnati I received a telegram from the company stating that the money would be ready for me at Chicago, but I ordered it sent to Indianapolis. When I got here I did not know what to do, and why I entered Krauss's store to buy goods without money I cannot say." Goldsoll claims that it was temporary insanity, and says that his mother was so afflicted. er was so afflicted.

A YOUNG WIFE'S SUICIDE.

She Quarrels with Her Husband About Women of Ill-Repute and Then Shoots Herself.

Mrs. Josephine Kissel, the young wife of William Kissell, of Haughville, committed suicide, at 6:30 o'clock last evening, under circumstances that created a good deal of gossip in that usually quiet suburb. It will be one year to-day since Mr. Kissell and the woman, spoken of by all who knew her as one of fair education and attractive presence, were married. Just before the marriage took place, Kissell opened a well-furnished saloon in Haughville, and fitted up the second story of the building as a residence. It was there he began life with his bride, then twenty-seven years of age, and it was there he saw her end her life last evening. Mr. Kissel kept a horse and buggy for his wife's pleasure, and she was in the habit of going out driving every afternoon, usually alone, as her husband had to remain at home and look after the business. Yester-Miss Annie L. Abromet will sing at one of the evening entertainments of the Convent Girls' Bazaar. This will be the last opportunity for her friends to hear her previous to her departure for the East. Miss Abromet has been a pupil of this well-known convent school for years, where at an early day she displayed talent as a vocalist and pianist.

I ome and look after the business. Tester day afternoon at 4 o'clock she called for the buggy, and drove away as usual. It was she came up to the saloon a buggy containing two women of ill-repute from the city stopped near her. One of the women calling for Mr. Kissell to repute from the city stopped near her.

One of the women calling for Mr. Kissell to come out, he appeared at the door of the saloon and asked them to drive into the yard and then come into the house. They started to go around to the back gate, when Mrs. Kissell drove in ahead of them. When the gate was opened for her she told the stable boy to close it and not allow the women to come in. Mr. Kissell had gone to the rear of the house by that time, and told the boy to leave the gate open and allow the women to drive in.

Mrs. Kissell still objected, but her husband's order was obeyed, and the women got out of the buggy and went into the saloon, where they bought some beer. Mrs. Kissell continued quarreling with her husband for allowing such characters to frequent the place, but in a moment went up stairs into the resident portion of the house. She was followed by her husband, and they had not been up-stairs more than five minutes until a pistol shot was heard, and Mr. Kissell came running down stairs, announcing that his wife had shot herself. Dr. J. C. Cain, who lived but one square away, was sent for, and when he reached the front room upstairs he found Mrs. Kissell lying on her face, and on the floor in the center of the room was a revolver. The woman was still breathing but she died in three minroom upstairs he found Mrs. Kissellying on her face, and on the floor in the center of the room was a revolver. The woman was still breathing, but she died in three minutes after the doctor arrived. Upon examination he, found that the ball had entered the chest a little to the left of the center, and had passed through one edge of the heart. There were no signs of powder on the woman's clothing, and yet the wound indicated that the ball had been fired at very close range. As soon as Mr. Kissell realized that his wife was dead he lost control of himself, and his friends were unable to quiet him. When a Journal reporter called at the house, last night, he was told that he could not see Mr. Kissell, as no one was allowed to talk to him.

There were but few people around the saloon when the shooting occurred, and as none of them were upstairs they could furnish no information as to what words passed between Mr. and Mrs. Kissell. The women of bad repute who caused the trouble hurried out of the saloon as soon as the shot was fired and hastily drove away. The people of Haughville who knew Mrs. Kissell well think that in a fit of passion she shot herself. They say she has been extremely jealous of her husband for several months, and has on several occasions threatened to commit suicide.

Gives the Management a Good Name.

Gives the Management a Good Name. Secretary Johnson, of the State Board of Charities, says in his statements to a Journal reporter regarding his visit to the State Prison at Michigan City, that he did not mean to imply the system of management there was bad. "The contrary is the case," he continued. "I think under the circumstances the results attained are admirable. stances the results attained are admirable. The men are treated with justice and humanity. Order and discipline are maintained without harshness and almost without severe punishment of any kind. That there are defects, and, seen in the light of the modern science of penology, very serious defects, in the prison system of Indiana, will be conceded by every thoughtful man. What these defects are, and the way to remedy the most serious of them, is clearly and forcibly set forth in the last printed report of the prison officers, both in the report of the trustees and that of the warden which accompanies it."

Effect of the Frost. When the populace arose yesterday to get the morning paper with the latest happenings round the world they discovered evidences of a light frost, and the milkman from the suburbs brought in a report that the nip had been more pronounced ont his way than in the city. Some of the tender vegetables may have been injured slightly, but it is not thought that fruits or grape-vines have been at all injured in this vicin-

Rose Polytechnic Institute.

The Rose Polytechnic Institute, an advertisement of which appears in the present issue of the Journal, is one of the three or four schools in the United States which are especially devoted to the education of civil and mechanical engineers. One of the peculiar features of the Institute is the thorough and extensive "shop practice" of the students in mechanical engineering. Not only are machines designed and working drawings made, but actual construction is required, and is made possible in extensive workshops, the equipment of which has cost over forty thousand dollars.
